NOTES FROM JAPAN.

The Suspension of a Christian Journal Explained.

YOKOHAMA, May 25, via Victoria, B. C., June 6.—In the lull which has followed the rejoicings over the imperial wedding, little of interest has transpired. In the aftermath, the report that a Christian journal had been suspended and its editors arrested for disrespect shown to imperial house in its comments on the ceremony attracted much attention, especially as the feeling against Christianity has lately been fostered in Conservative and Buddhist circles. It turns out, however, that the obnoxious article, which is reported to be of a decidedly indecent character, was the work of an irresponsible pair of boys and that in no way does it reflect upon the Japanese Christians. Whatever may be said of the literary standing or intellectual ability of the Christian press of the empire it has been thoroughly clean and in every way commendable in its moral tone.

How far the present mining boom in Korea is of a merely political nature it is difficult to say. There has been a remarkable number of demands upon the Government of that country for mining concessions and privileges, leading outsiders to gather the impression that the country must be a veritable storehouse of mineral wealth. According to the prevailing fashion here in the Orient, however, the knowing ones recognize in all this activity merely the first steps in the process of establishing political spheres of influence. At all events, the mining prospectors and adventurers of America should be duly cautioned not to wend their way hither on the reports of a new Eldorado having been discovered.

Japan's administration of the Formosan affairs is beginning to be greatly to its credit, as a colonial power. The work of the government indicates that the island is assured a prosperous future. Railway construction is rapidly progressing and the industries of the Formosans are getting a strong stimulus from the development of means of communication.

GOES TO STUDY FISH.

President David Starr Jordan of Stanford on the Gaelic.

Among the through passengers on the steamship Gaelic is Doctor David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford University and one of the greatest ichthyologists in the world.

The doctor has never been out in this part of the world before and intends to put in his time driving around Honolulu to-day until the Gaelic is ready to sail for the Orient. He goes to Japan to study the fish of that country and will make an extended report on the subject on his return to the States in a few months' time. Dr. Jordan represented the United States in the conference between the United States and British Fish Commissions at Victoria a few years ago.

CRIMPS MUST BEWARE.

Police Now Have Charge of Shipping Business.

The chief of the water-police has been given complete control of the shipping of men on vessels leaving this port and the crimps will have to seek other fields of labor.

Lark and Do-us methods have had their day, the press, the police and the ship captains have made it too warm for them and they will in the near future pull up stakes and decamp for Hilo or the Coast.

Captain Flint, chief of the water-police, is known and trusted by the captains and the shipping community at large. He is the right man in the right place, they say. "Big Jim" is Flint's right hand man on the harbor-front.
